

CITIZENS TO BE ASKED
TO REPORT ON POLICEProbe Begins Tuesday Night and Complaints May Be Filed Then

Chairman S. A. Wardlaw, of the special committee appointed Saturday night by the police commissioners to make an investigation of the efficiency of the department, announced Monday that his committee will organize Tuesday night after the regular board meeting and will begin its work during the week.

"While I have yet had no opportunity to consult with the other members of the committee," said chairman Wardlaw, "in my own opinion the investigation can best be started by inviting all citizens who have complaints against the department, or criticism of it, to appear before the committee."

"We may then be given specific points on which we can work."

This statement seemed to indicate at little upon which to base an investigation had been brought out by the "no hours" grilling of Chief Heaters by the commission on Saturday night, and Mr. Wardlaw was asked if anything actually wrong had been found with the department.

"We were designed not to discuss specific things about the meeting," he answered, "but I can say that Saturday's session was more of a conference than anything else."

PEACH CROP AS GOOD
AS THAT OF LAST YEARFruit Exchange Answers Report
That March Freeze
Killed Half

Answering the reports circulated immediately after the last-cold snap in March, to the effect that half of the Georgia peach crop had been killed, the Georgia Fruit exchange has wired the department of agriculture at Washington, that the reports had been greatly exaggerated.

From most points on Georgia, from which accurate reports were had, the exchange states, weather conditions are now ideal and the crop is unimpaired. A few places, Byron, Fort Valley and Marshallville, Ga., and Peachburg, Ala., report that the crop is half killed.

The exchange asserted the department of agriculture that the number of cars of peaches this year would easily equal the number of last year.

MEETING ON SCHOOLS
POSTPONED INDEFINITELY

The meeting of the executive committee of the Atlanta School Improvement association, scheduled to be held Thursday of this week, has been postponed indefinitely, owing to the fact that a committee from the labor union is making a survey of the public schools and a committee from the general council will commence an investigation this week. When these committees have finished and are ready to report, the executive committee of the improvement association will be called together.

NEW CHILDREN'S HOME IS OCCUPIED TODAY

With appropriate exercises, the new building of the Atlanta Child Welfare society, 213 Angier avenue, was dedicated Sunday afternoon. Monday morning the children moved from the old building, 219 Angier avenue, into the new one.

Dr. L. O. Becker, pastor of the First Christian church, delivered the dedicatory address. Dr. R. O. Flynn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, delivered an address.

The new home is a modern, two-story frame building, equipped with every convenience, erected at a cost of $6,000.

J. SCOTT TODD'S HOME
ROBBED SATURDAY NIGHT

Twelve pounds, a silver picture frame and a fountain pen were taken from the home of J. Scott Todd, 516 North Jackson street, by a burglar Saturday night, according to the police. Mr. Todd told detectives the intruder, supposedly barefooted, had come into his room, stolen the articles named, and then fled through the open window, dropping a suit of clothes on the lawn.

TWO PASTORS PRAISE
FAIRNESS OF BASEBALLWhite Calls It Great Game;
Line Says It's Like
Life

Baseball was strikingly used as the subject of two sermons Sunday morning—one by Dr. J. L. White, pastor of the Baptist tabernacle, the other by Dr. J. A. Line, pastor of the Universalist church. Both pastors told their congregations that fairness and a square deal were great requirements both of the game of baseball and the game of life.

"Baseball is the great American game," said Dr. White. "It is to America as the Olympic games were to Greece. It quells the brain and nerves of overworked, overtaxed, overwrought humanity; it saves men from the insane, the suicidal and the suicide's grave."

Dr. Line said the game of life, like a game of ball, was played for victory, and that victory could only be achieved by character building and by cleaving to all that was honest and square.

EMPIRE LIFE CASE IS BEFORE JUDGE ELLISWould Determine Jurisdiction of Fulton and Richmond
County Courts

For the purpose of determining, if possible, the present jurisdiction of the Fulton and Richmond superior courts in the Empire Life Insurance company litigation, begun months ago by a petition of J. R. Brown and others for a receiver, Judge W. D. Ellis began at noon Monday a general hearing of the case involved.

William A. Wright, insurance commissioner of Georgia, is temporary receiver of the company under a Fulton county superior court order. Captain James W. English is temporary receiver of the company's building and property in Augusta under a Fulton county order, but under an injunction from the Richmond superior court, is restrained from taking charge of the Augusta property.

The Whitney company, of New York, contractors, who filed an intervention asking for a lien on the Augusta property and a receiver for the property, filed in the face of the Richmond court's injunction, have withdrawn their petition in Fulton superior court for a receiver, but still ask their lien.

Augusta stockholders have filed a petition asking for a receiver in Richmond county; J. R. Brown and others are still endeavoring to have a receiver in Fulton county named by insurance Commissioner Wright appointed.

The above tangle is what Judge Ellis began trying to straighten out Monday. The hearing will take several days, it is expected.

Wilmer L. Moore will address the Atlanta Association of Building Owners and Managers at their monthly meeting Tuesday at the Ansley hotel.

WHOLE FAMILY
TORTURED BY ITCHING RASH

KIRKMAN CITY, Mo.—My husband had a rash all over his body, and among the whole family. It was very itchy and caused much trouble. It looked worse and raised up on the arms and body in big bumps. This trouble burned and itched so that it would nearly drive one crazy. It was always worse at night, so we could not sleep.

"We all had this trouble for about two or three years, and during that time tried many remedies and prescriptions with no results. We tried Remedial Soap and it cured us. It has been four months since we were cured, and there are no traces of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. S. A. Clarkson, 1529 Law Ave., Oct. 24, 1914. Every druggist sells Remedial Soap and Remedial Soap. For trial treat, write to Dept. J. R. Resford, Baltimore—AD-7.

ADAMSON STANDS BY
STAR OF BETHLEHEM

Congressman W. C. Adamson, of Carroll, delivered his lecture, "The Star of Bethlehem," before a large audience at the Central Baptist church on Sunday evening.

Judge Adamson in an interesting discussion refuted the statements of astronomers that no star such as the one seen by the Wise Men, was visible in the year one.

EXCELLENT PROGRAM
AT THE ORGAN RECITAL

Augmented by vocal selections sung by the College Park Choral club and the chorus of the Southern University of music, the organ recital of Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft at the auditorium Sunday afternoon was very attractive, and was attended by a large crowd.

Mrs. W. H. Wallace and Miss Frances Rivoli accompanied the singers on the piano.

GIRL WHO TOOK POISON
GLAD SHE'S STILL ALIVE

Miss Willie Turner, nineteen years old, 28 East Villa street, who swallowed a capsule of strychnine Sunday night in an effort to end her life, was reported Monday to be doing well at the Grady hospital.

"I had a fuss with a friend and didn't want to live," she said, when taken to the hospital, "but now I'm glad I'm still alive."

The reasons for Certain-teed Roofing

Every buyer needs the proper assurance, when he pays for the best quality, that a second or third quality will not be delivered. The market is flooded with too many brands. Some manufacturers with poor facilities too often meet competition by cutting quality. Some wholesalers buy any old quality, put their labels on it, and say it is the best. Our Certain-teed label is backed by the written guarantee of the world's largest manufacturer of asphalt roofings. It gives each buyer the assurance wanted, and our unequalled facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell it at a very reasonable price.

These are the reasons for

Certain-teed
Roofing

Come to our mills and see how we make the goods. We know that our Certain-teed Roofing is the best quality that we can make. It's the best quality that can be made to last and remain waterproof on the roof. It is made with that one purpose in view. We also make cheap grade, poor quality roofings to meet the demand for very temporary roofs, but the Certain-teed label goes only on our best quality, longest life product. It is the grade which carries our Company name and endorsement and guarantee—1-ply 5 years, 2-ply 10 years, 3-ply 15 years.

If you want the right quality and want to be sure you are getting what you pay for, insist on the Certain-teed label. The price is reasonable. No one can tell the quality of a piece of roofing by looking at it. The man is not living who can take three kinds of roofing of different qualities and tell with any degree of accuracy the length of time each one will last on the roof. He cannot tell their relative values by looking at them. Why take the chance of guessing, when you can get the safest guarantee on the best quality goods at a reasonable price.

If for any reason you do not care for the highest quality—if you want a temporary roof, we also make goods sold at the lowest price on the market, because we have unequalled facilities, and are making approximately a third of the entire asphalt roofing and building papers in the United States. Our facilities enable us to beat all competition on price goods as well as on Certain-teed quality.

The difference between the total cost of the goods, the freight, the laying, etc., between quality goods and price goods is insignificant. It is a much better price to pay on the getting and let the manufacturer of real responsibility insure you on all the vital points. He knows what he puts into the goods and what they will do—you can't see that until you get everything as represented.

LET'S BOOST BUSINESS

Less Politics—More Prosperity

We have had enough starvation business—enough of political "curse-alls" of every party, with their smoldering and burning enough of politicians who promise economy and honesty in order to get into office and then play for votes or party rather than for principle and right, etc. The one of living is not going down. Let's go for good times and make enough money to pay for the cost of a living, whatever it may be. We don't want cheap living—we want good business and good times for everybody and if we all pull together we will get them.

The game of the politician is to promise everything. Many of them ought to be prosecuted for fraud on account of the difference between what they promise and what they deliver. They promise the business man who over-pays for the quality of his goods. Let the business man, from the factory to the superintendant from the office boy to the president, from the hired man on the farm to the owner of the farm, remember that they have a common interest in good business and a square deal in business. Stop listening to the fakers and let's boost ourselves back into good times. It can be done. No more kickers and false promises are wanted. We are going to be too busy to listen to any except those who promote "good business" legislation.

The Short Cut
to Pipe-Joy

If you have squandered your youth looking for smoke joy among the desolating peppergrass brands, come over in our yard and try a pipe o' good old Prince Albert. Or, if you like yours rolled into a little paper pipe, smoke it your way, but make it of P. A. There's no two guesses about the pleasingness and goodness of the national joy smoke

It is the smoke fuel gentle and lovable, made so by a patented process, controlled exclusively by us, that takes out the bite and leaves a cool, free-burning, fragrant smoke. Stuff your old pipe to the brow with some of this ace-high tobacco or roll it in a cigarette and see how easy it feels on the tongue.

The tidy red tin, 10c; toppy red bag, 5c; the pound and half-pound tin humidors. Then, there's the 16-oz. P. A. crystal-glass humidior that's bang-up for home and for the office. You're always a fresh supply on hand, because the sponge in the lid keeps the tobacco pipe-fit.

CORN PRODUCTS COMPANY CASE ON IN U. S. COURT

Government Witnesses Here
From Alabama, Florida
and Several Ga. Cities

Taking testimony in the civil suit which the government has brought under the Sherman anti-trust law against the Corn Products Refining company, and others was begun in the federal building here Monday morning.

Government witnesses were on hand from Georgia, Florida and Alabama. The government is represented by Van Sinderen Lindley of New York, special assistant to the attorney general, while the other side is represented by Preston Davis of the New York law firm of Davis, Boardman & Platt, and James W. Austin of Austin & Smith.

The government suit was brought on March 1, 1913 in New York, and testimony has been taken in the east, middle west and the Pacific coast. Besides the Corn Products company, others against whom the action is directed are Peck & Pond, Limited, the National Starch company, the St. Louis Syrup and Preserving company, and numerous individuals as directors of these concerns, including E. T. Bedford, president of the Corn Products Refining company and for many years an officer of the Standard Oil company.

The government charges that by the formation of the Corn Products Refining company in 1906 a monopoly of the manufacture and sale in interstate commerce of glucose, starch, and related syrups was effected, and that since that time the monopoly has been maintained and trade in these products restrained.

The hearings in Atlanta will continue for several days. Witnesses representing Atlanta are D. R. Wilder, W. J. Pearson, J. D. Blakeley, and Homer S. Prater. W. C. Wright, of Cairo, H. S. Griggs and L. B. Gay, of Jacksonville, and David Dryfus and L. D. Whitefield, of Montgomery, are also government witnesses.

D. R. Wilder, a syrup manufacturer, of Atlanta, was the first witness. His testimony was in effect a review of the syrup business both prior to and after the alleged formation of the trust.

NEGROES HEAR ADDRESSES ON UPWARD PROGRESS

Stress was laid on the need of a proper foundation of fundamentals for the upward progress of the negro race by C. L. Harper and Richard D. Stinson, of the Atlanta Journal, and Industrial school when they addressed the Allen Christian Endeavor society at the Bethel church Sunday. Primary principles of foundation must be studied, they said.

SAYS WIFE STAYED OUT LATE; CAME IN WINDOW

After a month's married life, E. C. Bell brought suit for divorce Saturday morning. Mrs. Laura Bell, alleging that she stayed out late at night frequently, and that, on one occasion, when he had locked the front door at midnight, she came in later by climbing through a window.

E. C. Bell, 172 Jones street, of the Brower Candy company, requested The Journal to make it plain that he is not the E. C. Bell who brought the suit.

DECLARES IT WAS BOOZE KNOCKED OUT JOHNSON

Booze and not Jess Willard knocked out Jack Johnson in the 26th round according to Dr. H. H. Proctor, pastor of the First Congregational church, colored, who spoke on the "World War on Strong Drink" Sunday.

Booze got Jack going and coming, according to the pastor. If he "laid down" then it was because liquor had weakened his will. If he was really knocked out, then rum had undermined his strength.

"THE LIFE BEAUTIFUL,"

DR. ATKINSON'S TOPIC

Dean of St. Phillips Pleads for Larger View of Life in Sunday Address

Taking as his subject "The Life Beautiful," Dr. John R. Atkinson, dean of St. Phillips Episcopal cathedral, addressed a crowded house at the Forsyth theater Sunday night, and pleaded for a larger, nobler view of life and of the "thousand and one things which so to make up life."

The dean took for his text St. John 10: 10: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

Preceding his address, the dean read an open letter from an Episcopal churchman to Bishop Nelson, in which the writer deplored the unfair reports of the dean's remarks and pleaded with the critics of the dean for a more considerate and Christlike attitude. Finishing the letter, the dean declared that not one word of honest criticism of any of his plans has yet come to him, though there had been considerable fault finding. He declared that his object in holding the meetings was not controversial nor to make converts of other denominations to his church, but to make of the Jew, the better Jew, the Catholic, a more devout Catholic, and the Baptist, Presbyterian, Methodist and Episcopalian, better, truer men and women.

"If I can send these people back to their own churches, broader, more considerate, with a higher view of life, then I will have accomplished much. I have no particular doctrine but truth, to show them the best, the God of love; the Heavenly Father who watches over them more tenderly than their earthly fathers, yet a stern God, sitting upon a throne, headless of the cries of some of his children down in an awful abyss, while angels round him sing: Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord, God Almighty! I want to tell you of a God of Love, not a God who damns. Men who preach of a God who damns are diseased in mind."

And let us have principles, not rules. One of the ideas in Atlanta seems to be that all the goodness is enclosed in the waistcoat pockets of your ministers, and that God is synonymous with death and dead men's bones. I plead for reverence and love to God and let us not advertise our Christ and our God upon sign boards and in newspapers.

After the meeting Dean and Mrs. Atkinson left for a two weeks' trip to New York.

Either Bishop C. K. Nelson or Dr. W. W. Menninger, rector of All Saints, will be the speaker next Sunday night.

Out-of-town inquiries given careful, individual attention.

LONG AWAITED CHANGE OF COUNCILS AT HAND

Mayor Woodward Plans to "Get Off the Lid" and Take Trip Out of City

Mayor Woodward Monday was making preparations to leave the city Tuesday with a committee from the Southern States Fair association to visit a number of eastern cities.

While making all preparations the mayor would not state positively that he is going. If he does it will be the first time that the mayor has gone away from the city for as much as 24 hours since he took the executive chair over two years ago.

During all of his administration the mayor has had the majority of council against him, and quite obviously he has been "sitting on the lid" to keep council from putting anything over on him.

So now it appears that council's long awaited opportunity is at hand.

Slated to take the trip are the mayor, Councilmen J. B. Thomas, J. C. Cooper, the commission, Ivan E. Allen and Walter G. Cooper.

The committee plans to visit Syracuse, Toronto and Columbus for the purpose of inspecting the fair grounds and buildings in those cities. They will of course consult the officials, who have been operating the successful fair in those cities for a number of years.

According to Mr. Cooper the committee hopes to visit all three cities and return to Atlanta by next Sunday or Monday at the latest.

If the committee gets back Monday council meeting will present the mayor with a new slate of council members, Aldermen J. N. Ragsdale, from signing any papers passed at regular council meeting, so the city fathers, if they want to "put anything over" the mayor, will have to call a special session to do it.

BEAT BIRMINGHAM OR BUST, IS CRY OF HOME BASEBALL FANS

Atlanta and Birmingham are at home Wednesday, Birmingham playing Mobile, Atlanta New Orleans.

And it is on that day Birmingham says she will have "20,000 or bust." Well, she won't have 20,000; but Atlanta will. All it takes is for Toot to grow to a crowd to that game. It will be a cinch.

EVERYBODY'S GOING OUT.

Atlanta has forgotten all controversies and differences for the day. Everybody is going to the game, the ministers, the police, the chief of police, the club men, the leaders of the Men and Religion Forward Movement and those who don't like it. There may be even a "chug and burgle" present; but there will also be a lot of policemen.

"I'm going to the opening game and take a wife with me," said John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist Church. "I'm an old baseball captain myself and I believe the game is the finest, clean sport in America. Besides, we want to beat Birmingham."

"Unless something turns up to prevent it, I'll be there," declared Dr. W. W. Memminger, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church. "We want to pull Atlanta against other cities in the league."

"You bet I'll be there," said Mayor Woodward. "I've got to pitch that first ball."

"I haven't seen a ball game in a long time," heatedly cried Beavers. "So I don't know whether I'm going or not. But I certainly hope we beat Birmingham."

"We are strong for baseball," John J. Egan, leader of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, told C. T. Nuttall, vice president of the Atlanta Baseball Association. "Certainly I'm going to the opening game."

STORES MAY CLOSE UP.

Mr. Nuttall has appointed committees of business men who will canvass the merchants and the downtown stores and get them either to close up for the afternoon or send as many of their employees to the game as possible.

These committees are as follows: Candler building, Asa Candler, Jr., Harry L. Dix, C. V. Rainwater; Walton building, George W. McCarthy, Jr., and Tom Winn; courthouse, Henry M. Wood and Arnold Broyles; Atlanta National Bank building, George Adair; John Hynds and Edward Inman; Equitable building, Henry Davis, C. K. Ayer and Walter Kirkpatrick; Hurt building, Major E. B. Pomeroy; Joseph A. McCord and W. Joe Tilson; Healey building, Rutherford Lipscomb, W. A. Fuller, H. Clay and Moore; Grant building, Frank Lake, Dr. A. H. Vandyrke and A. L. Waldo; Fourth National Bank building, Charles F. Ryan, Roff Sims and Harry L. English; Third National Bank building, George W. Forrester, Thomas Irwin and J. N. Goddard.

Whole-sale dry goods dealers: W. A. Speer, Hugh Carter; wholesale millinery, Max Katz and M. M. Bodenhimer; whole sale books and shoes, Chris Sullivan and J. K. Orr; manufacturers, Harry L. Schiller, Tom Glenn and Oscar Elmer; retail dealers, George Muse, Lloyd Parks and J. K. Givens.

St. Elmo Massengale has been named chairman of the parade committee and will act as all automobile owners in town to parade through downtown Atlanta just before the game, headed by a band, which will also advertise the game throughout the downtown streets in the morning.

ALL WILLING ELIGIBLES NOW SERVING BRITAIN

Officer Says if More Men Are Needed Conscription Will Be Necessary

LONDON, March 29.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—"There are virtually no willing eligible men left to be recruited in those parts of the country which I have visited," writes an army recruiting officer to the Times.

Those who remain, he says, either are in the employ of the state; doing work essential for the defense of the state; under binding obligation to parents, wives, children, employers, employees or religious principles; earning such good money that they are deaf to all other considerations; or are real shirkers.

The officer believes that if any considerable additional number of men is required conscription will be necessary. Discussing those who decline to enlist because they are earning too much money, the officer says:

"There are many small towns which for several months have ten full to overflowing with pillaged troops. Trade men and house-holders have been making more money than ever before. Labor is nowhere to be had."

Of the agricultural districts, the officer says:

"Farmers at first encouraged their men to enlist to an extent which seriously hampered their business. Now they can no longer spare a single man. They express resentment over the unfair competition for their employees by the government and local authorities."

WAR MOVIES FULL OF THRILLING SCENES AT THE LYRIC ALL WEEK

as showed, holding religious services two times to the rest of the trenches.

One scene was taken on and near a British battle ship, and another on a ship. You are shown the men serving the guns and from a side position, the broadside from the long barrel pointing out over the sea from the port.

Again, the actual explosion of a bridge mined to stop the German advance is shown, and later, a "wild train" hurled by the Belgians against a German train in a mad effort to stop the advance on Antwerp.

The war pictures last over an hour and they are packed with action from first to last. They never get tiresome, for they are so arranged that one shifts from a naval engagement to a hospital, from a trench to a trench, from a German ship to French lancers, from one side to another, and each time a new type of soldier in different attire is portrayed.

The pictures are easily the best war movies that have come to Atlanta since the Lyric, 2:30, 4, 7:30 and 9 p. m. A brief introductory talk will be made by Prof. J. T. Terry before each performance.

Making Good Work Possible.

As long as one is on his feet, he can work after a fashion, no matter how badly he feels. But you cannot do good work—have ambition and energy, feel that life is worth living—with slumped shoulders or torpid liver. Foley Cathartic Tablets do away with that drowsy, dull tired feeling. They never gripe or cause nausea. They're wholesome, cleansing and healthful. Most satisfactory for stout persons. Sold everywhere.

Empire tires

RED WEAR LONGEST

Red because it's an Empire
An Empire because it's Red

Whenever you see a red tire you know it's an Empire. RED Rubber, as we cure it, makes the springiest, toughest tire known. To prove it, look at an Empire tread that has gone four or five thousand miles and compare with any other make that has given equal mileage.

Empire RED Rubber is a poor conductor of heat, which means less loss from friction. Empire RED Rubber does not deteriorate standing still, which means longer life. The Empire Non-skid Tread is extra thick, meaning more mileage.

Every Empire RED is sold with this famous Empire proposition: "100% satisfaction with every tire." You must be satisfied that you get full service for every dollar you spend. If you shouldn't get it, we'll make it up. Have you ever known such a reasonable offer?

GORGAS ASKED TO JOIN STAFF OF ROCKEFELLER

Is Wanted to Take Charge of War on Typhus Scourge
in Serbia

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, April 12.—Surgeon Gorgas of the army today had an audience with the president of the Rockefeller Foundation to become a permanent member of its staff as general adviser on matters relating to public sanitation and control of epidemics. He is particularly wanted to take charge of the medical relief expedition sent by the American Red Cross to Serbia to stamp out the typhus scourge in support of which the foundation is co-operating.
General Gorgas is expected to reach Serbia as to whether or not he will accept the offer within a few days. He probably will confer with Secretary Garrison and President Wilson about the matter. It is said that the Rockefeller foundation is so confident of his ability to take charge of the expedition that it has already begun to make arrangements for his departure. He is now in the Panama Canal zone which he has been visiting since he was promoted to the rank of major general.

DR. OGDEN DISCUSSES ATLANTA'S "TROUBLERS"

Speaking Sunday morning on "Men Who Trouble Atlanta," Dr. O. O. Ogden, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, declared a conflict is now in the city of Atlanta between the light and the dark. He said that the city is a melting pot of races and that the trouble is not in the race but in the character of the men who are troubling the city.

Her Name Won't Go in This Type but You Can See What a Stunner She Is by the

The most beautiful woman in all Russia, according to the Russians themselves, is a member of the Pavlowa's Russian ballet company, which appears at the Atlanta tonight. Her name is Stephanie Plaskowiczka. She is just past twenty years of age and is a striking blonde, a rather unusual type in Russia.

When Miss Plaskowiczka made her debut at sixteen in the Imperial opera house, in Moscow, her fame spread until stories of her beauty reached even the ears of Czar Nicholas, and she was summoned to appear at the Imperial opera house, in Petrograd (St. Petersburg). Her performance was rewarded by the imperial smile, and immediately she became the toast of the capital. She was courted by men of every rank and station, but she turned a deaf ear to all. She is still heart whole and fancy free, and her art continues to be her sole love.

GEORGIA ELKS TO MEET WAYCROSS ON MAY 12

1,500 Visitors Are Expected at First Convention of Several Years

WAYCROSS, Ga., April 12.—The biggest meeting of Elks ever held in Georgia will convene in Waycross May 12. The occasion will be the annual convention of the Georgia Elks association, which was reorganized at a meeting in Macon several months ago. Conservative estimates for the number of Elks who will attend the two-day meeting run from 1,000 to 1,500. Walter F. Andrews, of Atlanta, president of the association, is confident that the Waycross convention will prove the most successful the Elks have enjoyed in Georgia.

Work for the convention has been under way in Waycross for some time, and committees are leaving nothing undone to make the gathering a notable success. Special trains have been chartered already for some of the delegations. From Atlanta it is understood that about 400 Elks will come, with large delegations from all the important cities of the state.

The Waycross convention will be the first the Elks have held in a number of years. When the association was first organized the annual convention were among the biggest events of the year for Georgia Elks. Considerable important business is scheduled for the business sessions of the Waycross convention.

A big eater always says he eats slowly.

Some people who pretend to be original are not even good imitations.

If a man is unable to recall a pretty girl's name, it's another sign that he is growing old.

If you can keep a good resolution afloat for only one day it has done you at least twenty-four hours' worth of good.

From the standpoint of business concerns and of the public generally, the report of the Railroad Commission of Georgia for the year 1914 is an exceptionally interesting document. The Commission has jurisdiction over all public utilities in the State, now numbering two hundred and thirty-four, to which the people pay millions of dollars annually and in which many millions of capital are invested. At one point or another this vast field of activity touches the affairs of every merchant and manufacturer, every household and every citizen in the Commonwealth. As the intermediary between the interests of the people and the interests of these corporations, the duties of the Commission are exceedingly important and the report of its work is especially worth noting.

During the year 1914 the Commission disposed of five hundred and ninety-eight petitions, complaints and other matters "requiring formal action or order." For the preceding year this number was six hundred and eighteen. The decrease is explained partly by the lessened volume of public-utility business during the last four months of 1914, but mainly by the fact that relations between the utilities and the public are becoming steadily more intelligent and cordial. This happy trend is due largely, the Commission thinks, to "broader and more liberal policies upon the part of railroads and other utilities in their dealings with the public." Frankness and fairness breed frankness and fairness. The public service corporation that shows due regard for the community may expect, as a rule, the community's confidence and good will. And there is evidence to believe that throughout the country as well as in Georgia old antagonisms in this regard are giving place to a spirit of common helpfulness and reasonable understanding.

A particularly interesting feature of the Commission's report is that which deals with the earnings of Georgia's public service corporations during the last twelve months. Their net earnings for 1914 exceed those of 1913 by $1,778,715. It should be noted, however, that in respect to steam railroads these figures refer to the fiscal year ended June the thirtieth, so that the 1914 report does not reflect the condition of steam railroads in the months following the outbreak of the European war. The Commission truly observes that the South, more perhaps than any other region of the United States, felt the war's depressing influence:

The 1914 cotton crop was large, and all the indications up to the breaking out of the war pointed to fair prices for a bountiful yield of this great staple. With the outbreak of this war our European cotton markets, principally England, Germany, France, Austria and Russia, were practically or practically closed, and consumption reduced, with disastrous effect on prices. Every business line in the South felt these effects during the past fall and winter, and possibly no one, except the cotton growers, more so. The cotton crop of 1915, however, is expected to be about the same as last year, but the past six months show declines, as compared with the same period last year, of from 15 to 40 per cent. They have not been able to reduce maintenance and operating expenses correspondingly, and hence their gross and net earnings for the past six months are undoubtedly very seriously and heavily decreased. But for this one great and disastrous influence, wholly external to our State and the South, and for which we are in no sense responsible, the year 1915 would have been a doubtful one. It is a very serious and satisfactory in the history of Georgia carriers. The depressing effects of the war have also been appreciably felt by other public service corporations, such as the express companies, telegraph and telephone companies and street car companies, and the latter have been severely experienced by steam railroads. From an examination of the monthly reports to the Commission, we believe the worst has passed, although we are satisfied that the improvement so much desired will come only as the economies of operation and management must be practiced for quite a season yet.

Aside from the war, it is evident that the public service companies of Georgia are favorably circumstanced. Living under just and equitably administered laws, they are prospering with the State and in turn are contributing to the State's development.

"U-47 will take in provisions and clear for sea. Extreme economical radius."

A first lieutenant, with acting rank of commander takes the order in the gray dawn of a February day. The hulk of an old corvette with the Iron Cross of 1813 on her stubby foremast is his quarters in port, and on the corvette's deck he is presently saluted by his first engineer and the officer of the watch. On the pier the crew of the U-47 await him. At their feet the narrow gray submarine lies alongside, straining a little at her cables.

"Well, we are our orders at last," begins the commander, addressing his crew of thirty, and the crew grin. For this is U-47's first experience of active service. She has done nothing save trial trips hitherto, and has just been overhauled for her first fighting cruise. Her commander snaps out a number of orders. Provisions are to be taken in "up to the neck," fresh water to be put aboard, and engine-room supplies to be supplemented.

A mere plank is the gateway to the little vessel. A commander, followed by his officers come aboard the sailor hand for each wall of his craft, the door is open and the companion-ladder all drenched oil, and at every step they must struggle against the narrow rungs. Through the hole at the bottom the commander descends by a breakneck ladder into the black hole lit by electric glowlamps. The air is heavy with the smell of oil, and to the unaccustomed lungs it seems like a gas mask. On their heads are helmets. The submarine man breathes this air as if it were the purest ozone. Here in the engine room after midnight he strains every nerve even if for days at a time every crack whereby the fresh air could get in would be fatal. On their faces fullness, this life lives depend.

Here, too, are slung some hammocks, and in them or watch tries, and what, more, succeeds in sleeping. The air is warm, and the sun is shining brightly from above at every turn, and the low and narrow vault full of the hum and purr of machinery. In length the room is like a hen pen, but if a man of normal height stands in the middle he will find it difficult about his shoulder height his hands will touch the cold, metal walls on either side. A network of wires runs overhead, and along the floor are rows of hand levers and instruments. The commander inspects every thing minutely, then creeps through a hole into the central control station, where the chief engineer is seated at a console. With just enough light ahead him to run safely, the submarine's shore staff chief engineer says: "The submarine is expected to control, correct, and fix repair, at sea an infinitely complex machine." The commander looks at the constant tick of the mm.m.s. to return alive to the bulk.

A daybreak the commander comes on deck in coat and trousers of black leather lined with wool, a protection against oil, cold and sea water. The crew at the stern of the ship are also dressed in black leather. A clear call of voice from the contrivance, and "Clear off," snaps the order from the bridge. Then "Carriage ship!" The cables slap on the landing stage, the engine begin to purr, and U-47 slides away into open water.

A few cable lengths away another submarine appears, her head and bow of the U-49 returning from the long haul, which she succeeds in sinking the first boat with a cargo of frozen mutton for England.

"Good luck, old sheep-stealer," sings the commander of U-47 as the sister ship passes within hail.

In his letter to the Westchester Democratic Club, Secretary McAdoo trenchantly summarizes the work of the Wilson Administration:

"A nation safe from the disasters threatened by the European war; prosperity restored; peace preserved; government administered in the interest of all the people; backdoor influences destroyed; high moral standards maintained; legitimate business safeguarded; the tariff intelligently reformed; a new and safe financial system established; these are in part the Democratic achievements during the brief period of two years. The party can face the country on its record, with confidence in itself and trust in the people."

Any one of these achievements would be noteworthy; taken together, they constitute one of the most remarkable records of service in American history. The establishment of the new banking system alone has proved, and will continue to prove, of immeasurable value. The revision of the tariff alone would have sufficed to make the Sixty-third Congress memorable. The trust laws, at once conserving and emancipating, would be in themselves monumental work. The preservation of the country's peace in the midst of world-wide war is a blessing beyond estimate. All these and scores of other fruitful deeds stand to the credit of the Democratic Administration. On such a record, the party can face the future with confidence and cheer.

Rumors of a steamer on fire sixty miles off Sandy Hook caused excitement in shipping circles yesterday. The French Line cargo vessel Champlain, inbound from Bordeaux, sent a wireless to the company's office, stating that she was passing the Fire Island Lightship. "Lightship" in French, the language in which the message was sent, is "bateau feu," meaning literally, "ship of fire." Some on whose knowledge of French was attained in six easy lessons, got hold of the marconigram and translated it to mean that the Champlain was passing a "ship on fire."

The mistake was rectified before the Champlain reached her pier.—New York Tribune.

"Have you been making any progress since my last visit to Crimson Gulch?" asked the serious stranger. "Yes. Ever since some whist players struck the town we have been more refined. They didn't last long, but their influence lingers. Every time a player says he can open a jackpot everybody around the table says, 'Pray do.'"—Washington Star.

When down the stair at morning
The sunbeams round her float,
Sweet rivulets of laughter
Are bubbling in her throat:
The gladness of her greeting
Is gold without alloy:
And in the morning sunlight
I think her name is Joy.

When in the evening twilight
The quiet book-room lies,
We read the old ballads,
While from her hidden eyes
The tears are falling, falling,
That give her heart relief,
And in the evening twilight
I think her name is Grief.

My little April lady,
Of sunshine and of showers,
She weaves the old spring magic
And breaks my heart in flowers!
But when her moods are ended,
She nestles like a dove;
Then, by the pain and rapture,
I know her name is Love.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN,

MOST persons think water or water as a substance is most as abundant as air. Even in the United States, where people are generally more sophisticated, the abundance of rainfall regards it largely as a matter of chance quite beyond human control whether he has a good year or a poor one. Scientists, however, know that the country has a definite and limited supply of water, which is agricultural capital, and, moreover, they know that the supply is steadily decreasing. The question of how to conserve the water supply of the United States, involves, as it does, food control and water power as well as our cultural frontiers, is perhaps the greatest economic problem confronting the people of the United States today.

It is a matter of common observation that the great floods of the Mississippi valley, which destroy an average of a hundred million dollars worth of property annually, have gained their great size and frequency chiefly during the last two decades. During this same period droughts have become more severe and of more common occurrence. Again and again, large sections of the agricultural west report their crops shriveled by long unbroken spells of drought which were almost unknown in the same regions not so very many years ago.

The relation between drought and flood has been known in a general way to scientists for a long time. They have realized the immense quantities of water carried off by the ever-increasing spring freshets are depriving the land of water which should have been stored in the soil. The United States has been slow to have proved conclusively that the actual amount of the reserve supply of water held in the subsoil of this country has greatly decreased within the last few years, and is still decreasing. They have shown, first, that the ground water is being used up, and then attention to those which are subject to spring floods, has changed their habit of flow, becoming more irregular and intermittent. In a word, it is a matter of record and not of speculation that the United States is dry. The drought in the United States is a real one. In this country is a contingency to be reckoned with.

We, as a nation, have never had as much water we needed. Agronomists know that water, if rich applied to the land, will produce just one-thousandth part of its weight in useful crops, and that on ordinary soils, sixty inches of rainfall are required for full productivity. But the average rainfall of the mainland United States is only thirty inches. Moreover, the rainfall is unequally distributed, so that less than our area gets enough water to be productive at all, while nearly half of it receives too little to make farming possible without irrigation.

Thus it is seen that the United States has no wa-to waste. And from a national point of view, this fact is the more important, because practically all of our arable lands have been taken up and placed under culvation. Our national growth cannot be maintained extending the settled area, but only by a more intense farming of our lands. And more production is impossible without a greater water supply.

The country's reserve supply of water is held in the soil. The amount of this water gradually increases from the surface downward for the first 100 feet, and then gradually decreases as the composition of the soil changes. The water in the soil is the water of saturation, or the point at which the soil holds the water that it can hold, is known as the "water table." The support of plant life depends upon the character of the soil, and the depth of the water table in the surface, so that it can reach the roots of the plant. This is done by capillary—that is, the tendency of the fluid to ascend through narrow openings, on the same principle that a drop of water will rise in a glass tube. If the water table falls to such a low level that the water cannot reach the plant roots by capillaryity, then the land will not support useful crops. There are many places in the country where the water table is so low that it may be demonstrated by sinking a well shaft, but which are arid deserts because the water is beyond the reach of capillaryity.

The water table of the United States at large gradually sinking, that the soil, in a word, is drying like a sponge and that the water table is dropping. Wells taken not long ago by the United States department of agriculture, a blank circular requested the ship crop reporters all over the United States, who supply the department with its information about crops. Statistics were compiled on over 13,000 wells of all states.

The most important fact which this investigation brought out was that the agricultural water table of the country, as shown by the depth at which the water stands in the well, is now just about as low as it can be, and is dropping. Furthermore, for over 8,500 feet, these levels were given at two different periods. If the water supply of the country had been constant, the underground channels through which the water reaches wells become enlarged with use. Instead of this, the water table has been dropping, and in nearly half of the wells, had remained stationary in

O. Henry died a few years ago with little in the way of this world's goods to show of immense popularity and great productivity when even short story writing had become well-paid professions. Less than a half century ago Henri Murier and humorist, a member of the "Bohémia Club," wrote the first of his novels, Le Club, one of the first of the art of the term "Bohémia," which has since come to many, and sometimes base, uses. He himself, however, was not a Bohemian, but a man of letters, and his recognition by a literary capital of the time, the club, giving to the life of glamour to the club, and will always retain. But as a cynic, he was not a Bohemian, and his glittering automobile was soon as humiliated enough to buy the equipment. The old Bohemian who has not succeeded. There are few others who have not succeeded. The Bohemian non seems also to have been unsuccessful, not a faculty for saving. But the happy-go-lucky Bohemian, who is not a Bohemian, then elsewhere. It is a common mistake that a writer who has won recognition is a Bohemian. It is a common mistake to shock to the readers of his stories.

TYPHOID AND AGE

A study of the distribution of typhoid fever

The charts show the prevalence of typhoid five-year period from early childhood until age seventy. The study covers 10,520 cases in Pennsylvania, 2,250 in Michigan and 1,304 in Minnesota. A compiled indicate that the disease is most prevalent between the ages of fifteen and nineteen years of age. In the other two states, the prevalence was during the next five years and was between the ages of ten and fifteen. In Pennsylvania, twenty-four, the percentage began to decrease until old age, when it is extremely low.

This study indicates that if parents guard their children from typhoid until the age of twenty,

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This dissolves it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arsanol; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to smooth the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single bit and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and stinging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arsanol at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.
